

STERLING LOCKS SAFECAN – THE PASSWORD TO SUMMER SALES

In recent years, the number of security logins required for every day life has escalated. From online shops to social media sites and laptops to mobile phones, they all need one and experts recommend a different password for each. They also recommend these are not stored on the PC or mobile phone. Few people have the memory power to recall each one without writing them down. As a result sales of Sterling Locks SafeCans are growing as they are increasingly used as the perfect place to hide coded lists of passwords and valuable items.

Sterling Locks SafeCan: Password Secure

SafeCans are an exact imitation of every day top branded items - such as a can of Heinz Baked Beans. However, instead of beans, they have a secret storage area for keys, cards, or cash and increasingly, passwords.

They're a great gift for students to store back-up keys, credit cards or cash in their digs.

The De-Icer SafeCan is ideal for storing spare keys in garages or sheds, while you can hide valuables in plain sight in the Heinz Tomato Soup SafeCan stored alongside other groceries in a food cupboard.
